

All-Natural Statement

Briess Malt & Ingredients Company produces all-natural ingredients. Though the term “All-Natural” does not have a current Food and Drug Administration regulatory definition, our products conform with current United States Department of Agriculture definitions and most other published or proposed definitions.

In accordance with this our 100% Natural or “All-Natural” products have the following characteristics:

Only “All-Natural”, non-Genetically Modified Organism sources of raw materials are used in the production of our products. No synthetic or artificial additives, preservative or colors are added to the product. All methods used to produce the products, including malting, roasting, instantizing, brewing/extraction, drying and milling involve minimal processing that could be accomplished (on a smaller scale) using simple equipment in home kitchens. In most cases these processes involve only water as an ingredient and control of heat, time and grain sprouting as controls.

Respectfully,

Robert M. Hansen
